SUMMARY OF EXPERIENCE

Dr. Dimen was in private practice in Arcadia from 1993 until joining HMF. She has privileges at Huntington Memorial Hospital and Arcadia Methodist Hospital, where she was named chair of the Pediatrics Department in 2008.

In her first years of practice, she taught infant and child safety, and child development at Pasadena City College. She also taught baby care classes at Methodist Hospital.

Dr. Dimen became involved in health education in college, serving as a Peer Health Counselor at UCLA. She continues to be an educator in her daily practice of pediatrics.

“Patient education is a vital part of every patient visit,” she says. “Whether it’s discussing how to care for a child’s particular illness or issues such as nutrition, safety or discipline, I love it when a parent brings a list of questions. I know they will leave satisfied that all their concerns were addressed and that feels great!”
